

FLEMING COUNTY IN OIL PRODUCING TERRITORY

It is reported that Fleming county is the latest Kentucky county to join the ranks of the oil producers of the State. An oil well in the vicinity of Colfax, Fleming county, which was drilled 300 feet four years ago by Fleming county oil men and abandoned after a showing of oil was made, blew in this week scattering oil for some distance. The well continues to flow, says a dispatch.

An examination of the oil has been made and declared by those who have tested its ingredients to be a high-grade Somerset oil. The abandoned well is in the neighborhood of a well now being drilled by Chicago interests, which has reached a depth of 1,000 feet with only a slight showing of oil.

YOUTH'S URGED TO JOIN AGRICULTURAL CLUBS

Every boy and girl in the common schools of Kentucky should become members of the junior agricultural club, said Gov. Edwin P. Morrow in his "Join the Agricultural Club, proclamation." He said:

"Know the soil on which you live; know the joy of producing from that soil; learn the independence which comes from contact with the soil when it produces wealth; learn to know nature as it is made to yield everything which gives and sustains life; learn at last that character is built on God's clean out of doors. All of this, and more besides, comes and will come to you from real active membership in the Junior Agricultural Club of Kentucky."

KENTUCKIAN-CITIZEN NOW UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

In the issue of The Kentuckian-Citizen of Saturday, official announcement was made of the transfer of the plant and good-will to the active management of Louis T. Lilleston, who has been associated with the paper for several years as city editor. Mr. Lilleston with that issue, assumed active control of the editorial and business management of the paper. Mr. Bruce Miller, who has been editor and publisher for many years, retires from active work because of continued illness.

In a card to the public Mr. Miller states his reasons for giving over the property to other hands, mainly on account of his bad health, and upon the advice of his physicians. Mr. Miller has been owner of the paper since the death of Col. John G. Craddock, several years ago. Mr. Lilleston, in his statement to the public, promises to carry out the policies of the former management.

BALLOT FOR CLUB OFFICERS

Great interest is being displayed in the approaching annual primary election for officers and Board of Directors for the Paris Commercial Club. Ballots for the purpose of making nominations for the offices have been mailed out by Secretary Wm. E. Hacker, and many have already been returned to the office of the Club.

The balloting will close at eight o'clock, Thursday night, when the election committee, composed of Hugh Brent, John F. Davis, J. J. Veatch, Chas. Green and Monroe Mansfield, will count the returns. The three receiving the most votes for the respective offices will be placed on the ticket for the general election, to be held on Tuesday night, November 22. At this time a banquet will be served to the members of the Club.

A committee of which Bernard J. Santen is chairman is making arrangements for this event. The program will include music and an address by a noted public speaker. A special effort is to be made to get a full attendance of the Commercial Club members at the annual meeting.

NOVEMBER COURT DAY

November Court Day was attended by an unusually large crowd yesterday, drawn for the most part from the farming element, and others interested in the success of the tobacco marketing plan. It being the day before election, candidates were busy with voters, but not to so large an extent as in former years. The spick market seemed to be active, more horses being on the market than at previous court days. Some cattle and mules changed hands at good prices. Merchants report business as being only medium, with collections fair. In the afternoon a meeting of tobacco men at the court house drew a large crowd from the streets. The usual street beggars, blind musicians and leather-lunged "evangelists" were in evidence.

REAL ESTATE DEALS.

Auctioneer M. F. Kenney sold yesterday at the court house door for Master Commissioner O. T. Hinton, the farm of 123 acres belonging to the Noah Spears heirs, located on the Bethlehem pike, about 3½ miles from Paris, to Grover C. Baldwin, for $114.75 an acre.
